Did you know?

The Sons of Liberty was originally known as the Loyal Nine.

The British government decided the American colonies needed to be punished for the Boston Tea Party. They issued new laws and taxes that the colonists called the Intolerable Acts, or Coercive Acts. They were given the name "Intolerable Acts" by patriots who felt they could not "tolerate" the unfair laws. These harsh laws closed the port of Boston entirely. The British Royal Navy sent warships to make sure no one went in or out of the harbor. The port of Boston would remain closed until the cost of the dumped tea was recovered. The British government also passed the Quartering Act which forced colonists to house and feed British soldiers.

The First Continental Congress took place in September of 1774. Representatives from each colony met in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. They discussed their concern of the Intolerable Acts and other unfair British laws. The representatives of the colonies sent a letter to King George III explaining their issues and concerns with taxes and unfair treatment. They requested that King George III, king of Great Britain, cancel the Intolerable Acts or they would refuse to use and buy British goods. King George ignored the request. Eventually the colonists decided to fight for their independence from Great Britain in the Revolutionary War.
